Among the people of France there was satisfaction with the reparations plan, especially because it was expected that the first effective payments by Germany will make available for negotiations or for use as security the French share of the 60,000,-000,000 gold marks in bonds already delivered by Germany to the reparations commission. Great Britain has sereed not to utilize her claim on Germany as a basis for loons during the next five years, and this gives France the opportunity to make use not only of her share of the bonds but also her part of the 12 per cent tax on Germany's exportations, to raise money to continue the work of reconstruc

Mrs. Wood Elf appeared. "I have no wash rags," she said, "but I've running water in the brook and you must make haste for breakfast is ready. "We shall have it in the open space which is my dining-room."

So the boy and the girl washed in the lovely clear water of the brook and felt very fine afterward. "I feel ready for anything," said the boy. "Now for breakfast and adven-

Do come here and have a look! But better still, come, have a seat, "Then we'll all begin to eat." "We're ready," said the girl. "And we're good and hungry too."

"Well," said Mrs. Wood Elf, "your time for starting was before this, but still there is no great, great hurry, as Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life will explain.

Mrs. Wood Elf had no sooner said that there was no need to hurry and that Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life would explain than there suddenly appeared behind a tree, just as though she had been hiding there all the time, a jolly looking little young-old woman, She tripped lightly over to Mrs.

"She Pointed."

"My dear, my dear good friend, it was most kind of you to invite me to 11. The Coming Bridegroom (vv. 6 your party, Dld you see me? Did you now, my dear? Of course you did!" "Were you waiting for something to turn up?" asked Mrs. Wood Elf. "Of course not," said Mrs. Get-the-

Most-Out-of-Life, "and you know I wasn't! Do you suppose they will like me?" She pointed to the boy and girl, and she didn't lower her voice in the least when she said this. They could hear her perfectly. And they could hear Mrs. Wood Elf's answer. "To be sure they'll like you. They who only make a profession. The pro are late in starting out this morning." "I heard you tell them my name," said Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life. "and I was sadly afraid they mightn't like it. It sounds like rather a preachy share their oil (vv. 8, 9). The revela name. I may change it some day. I am not sure. "But if they thought it just sounded like a regular name, which meant all sorts of good things, then I may not change it." Still she talked to Mrs. Wood Elf, pointing to the boy and the girl from time to time They kept watching the new breakfast guest, who now began to eat a portion of fish which Mrs. Wood Elf had given her.

The boy and the girl couldn't decide whether the breakfast guest was old or young. She didn't look either old or young. And she didn't look tall or small, or especially fat or especially thin. She just looked very jolly and effeery and bright and nice and sensible, and that really was enough, the boy and the girl decided, for any one person to have about them. "I was afraid, as I've said before, you would not like me because of my name," said Mrs. Get-the-Most-Out-of-Life to the boy and the girl as she shook each by a hand in a very cor dial way. "But please do, for I love boys and girls. I'd miss so much in life if I didn't. And of course I want to get the most out of life possible," he smiled brightly.
